

Another possible explanation for the gap between our result and original paper is that we failed to remove the outliers when utilizing neural networks. And some extreme values affected the results.